

---

Mitchell G. Fulton

Comptroller Naval Facilities Engineering Command

Mitchell G. Fulton is the Comptroller for the Naval Facilities Engineering Command (NAVFAC) as well as the NAVFAC Community Manager for approximately 500 financial personnel located at NAVFAC Headquarters in Washington D.C., fifteen subordinate Echelon III and IV Commands, and over eighty other support sites throughout the world. NAVFAC employs some 19,000 military and civilian personnel to provide technical expertise and authority, supporting the Navy, Marine Corps, and other Defense Services and Agencies in the areas of: military construction; planning and design; contingency engineering; environmental planning, remediation, and compliance; real estate acquisition, management, and disposal; public works, and, expeditionary logistics. Mr. Fulton was confirmed for selection to the Senior Executive Service (SES) on March 12, 2010.

Mr. Fulton began his financial management career as a Navy Financial Management intern in 1982 at NAS Norfolk. After successfully completing the Navy's Financial Management Training Program, he served in various financial management positions in Norfolk, VA. In 1987 he accepted a position at Naval Facilities Engineering Command, Atlantic Division and was promoted to Budget Officer in 1990. He completed a five year overseas tour as Comptroller for Personnel Support Activity, Europe in Naples Italy from 1994 – 1999. In 1999, he came to NAVFAC HQ serving in various management and supervisory roles, Director of Operations Branch and later Director of Resource Allocation Branch. He completed the Federal Executive Institute Program "Leadership in a Democratic Society" in June of 2008.

In 2007, he became the Deputy Comptroller of NAVFAC. In this capacity he was the Command's expert technical authority for all operating, industrial, and investment accounts/civilian personnel budget execution and budget formulation. He played a key role in corporate-wide programming, budgeting, resource allocation, and fiduciary reporting.

Mr. Fulton is a native of Bel Air, Maryland. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Kalamazoo College. In addition, he has taken post-graduate courses at the University of Baltimore, School of Law. During his 30 year career he has been awarded the Navy Meritorious Civilian Service Award (1997) and is a Certified Defense Financial Manager (CDFM).